Interpersonal Skills:

They are defined as the behavior the human use to interact and communicate with other people

Type of Interpersonal Skills:

1.Negotiating skill: (Anon., n.d.) (Gibson, 2023) (S, 2023)

For me as a leader in the team having 185 score in the interpersonal test shows that my negotiating skill were strong which helped a lot in resolving conflict between other members in the group and the problem that occurs in the project and having a positive relationship with the partners of the company which helps us to achieve growth for the company and achieve our objectives resulting the success of the project. Therefore, for this to occur the leader should have a good and clear communication and be emotional intelligence which means that perceiving the others' emotions and determine what they are stating.

The skills that were need to achieve being a good negotiator:

Reaching a mutual agreeable term through agreement and settlement for the event and diagnosing the Other Party's Position and this is done by knowing what they are interest in and their need to attract by following a specific technique or approaches to make them choose us to plan their event having a win-win situation after that evaluating the progress is important to see if it adapts our strategies

As we can see in the project when the guest speaker didn't come as a good negotiate, I communicated a new guest speaker and convinced him to come and also, we also talked with the stake holder we resolved the conflicts and it was a win-win solution for the new speaker because he will receive extra bonus for this session and a win for us preventing the show to be cancelled and avoiding attendees' satisfaction.

2.Assertiveness skill: (Perry, 2021)

My strong interpersonal skill helped me to assets my assertive skill toward my team and helped my personality it helped me to not to say yes to everything in either way works or in my family and ending up feeling overwhelmed and anxious it made me helped me to know what I wants and needs in a respectful manner without the need to get aggressive which made me to feel happier in work which made me a more productive person at work also a it made me a better leader in work it helped me to handle difficult situations in a positive manner controlling my emotions and setting boundaries to it such as dealing with my collogues in work in ease creating more positive professional atmosphere and productive one which helped us to have a successful event.

The benefit from being assertive in work is:

1.it let you know your own worth and to not hesitate to take challenging actions out of fear such as finding a new guest speaker in a short period of time and the negative consequences it has, also it helps you to gain the respect of your team and move forward in your career.

2.when we solved the conflicts that occurred such as technical conflicts the company and my team will know my values and let everyone surrounded by you in work to know you value showing that you are confident and capable of setting boundaries in a professional way of manner.

3. it helped me in the decision making in the project cause being assertive is taking and listening for everyone opinion also making sure that everyone agrees and on the same board before moving to the next part as we did in the project before deciding to bring a new guest speaker based on everyone perspective.

4.Celerbrating with the team the achievement the individual and the team members achievements cause the credit is for everyone who made the effort and the hard work on the project this will make them to feel more motivated toward work.

Belbin role analysis

(Anon., n.d.)

I got from the Belbin analysis the main role is implementor and specialist which means what Belbin think about these roles that its more Action roles(implementor) and Thinking roles (specialist) let's get deep on their meaning depending on Belbin article

Implementor: they are more organized and efficient in works they take in also they tend to put plan ensuring that work is done in the right time also the get motivated by the satisfaction of getting work done.

Specialist: they search in depth about the work they get and study it in depth also as their names which means that they tend to be specialist in the area having a lot of knowledge.

My result in the Belbin analysis was the highest score I got is the implementor and specialist and the one that I totally agree with that I found myself quite reliable, efficient, and reliable Take the ideas and put them into action and focus on how to make our work better putting ideas of the team member into action like the planning for the designing mobile application using ai event that was we had to finish and dividing the task and roles for each members to get the work done for each phase. In addition, I strongly agree that I find myself a specialist cause I tend to focus more on providing technical expertise and analysis to the other members as a manager I had a lot of events and project that I did before so I tried to give the other team members the required skills and the knowledge on what to do and how exactly do it by searching in the internet and asking other expert their advices to have a perfectionist result at the end which is lead us to measurable event and perfectionist one.

My team saw me as a good team leader and a good implementor to implement our ideas into action we started brainstorming our ideas in orders for each role in the group based on their swot analysis and the amount of time it needs to finish it then put it into action which allow us to achieve a lot in a required time and looking for extra improvement to give out the best job this is how everyone they were working and achieving on the same time and this is how I did applied my job as implementor.

My team agreed that my role is also a specialist because that I tend to focus on a fine detail of the project which is sometimes is a disadvantage which lead me to lose the sight of the bigger picture the required goals to achieve but it also helps me to assure the quality of the work that each member is giving out then analyze it too see if it needs more improvement .In addition, they saw a disadvantage that I have a specialist which was over sympathizing on details which led me to overthink and caused delayed the decision making But they also appreciated my expert in this field cause it also results in high quality events that we were organizing and listened to my advices.

However, my team think that I'm more a complete finisher also, and I also think my complete finisher role should be higher my team think that's because I like everything to be on time and accurate and look for everyone .In addition , I keep checking the outcome quality for each task in the project they are giving did they achieve the goals of resulting high standard quality also concerning about the deadlines are we late or are we too early and analyze why then holding up regular meeting to keep them on track and not letting them lose the sight of achieving the required goals this is how we achieved in the accurate time and how we meet our deadline successfully resulting in success for the project (event).

These 3 roles that I got helped me to contribute the success of the project by implementing (Implementor role, Specialist, and Complete finisher).

Implementor putting task into action such as finding a suitable venue, setting up a schedule, and managing resource efficiently

Specialist having high outcome and analyzed that it done perfectly such as I'm already have designing courses so I can use it to design some brochures for the events cause I'm expert at it.

Complete finisher focusing on details of the outcome ensuring it done correctly and properly no mistake was done it's a big benefit cause having someone focusing on details in planning an event is critical such as viewing promotional material for accuracy is it done correctly also checking the execution of the event met the standard that beyond digital wave is asking.

Strong Interpersonal Skills (180-199):
A score in this range reflects strong interpersonal skills. You are proficient in various aspects of communication and relationship-building, and your interactions with others are effective and positive. Maintain your strong interpersonal skills by continuing to practice and learn. Look for opportunities to mentor others and share your knowledge and experience in this area.	185

Having A strong personal helps in building communication and building relationship either ways in work or in personal life in effective way and positive also it helps in solving conflicts and challenges by sharing my knowledge to it so to achieve my work in the project I applied the my strong interpersonal and the questioners in the analysis with the Belbin analysis

Relationship Building skills

I excelled at (Cooperation and Coordination) & (Conflict Resolution) questioners

As we can see here that overall result is nearly 5 for all

Which shows that these relationships building skills that they align with team worker role in the Belbin role analysis with a score an 8.

This helps in building positive relationship with my team members this done by sharing the knowledge and the information with my team respectively to cooperate the goals

Being willingly cooperative to work in group making eye contact with them listening what they are saying understanding being open minded to their way of thinking and how the see things form different perspective also if I didn't like some stuff, I disagree it with them without hurting their feelings in a diplomatic way and professional. Therefore, I try to come with the best ideas after listening to them from all their point of view and perspectives this help in avoiding conflicts that we might encounter and overcome challenges which helped me to improve my skill in negotiating skills more in this way not only it going to make positive team but an also an effective collaboration between team leading increasing the team ability in achieving the goals.

Active Listening

I can summarize and rephrase other people's ideas					5
I can provide proper verbal and non-verbal feedback to others				4

Active skill is part of Communication skills which part of team work

Being a good team worker with a score of 8 and having great Skill in the communication helped me to understand what is being said by the other people and ask for any clarification for unclear ideas also I try my best to show the person that I'm interested and considerate of their emotions then state the ideas that they want to achieve to give them the proper feedback which were reflecting on my team worker role in the Belbin analysis cause team worker is usually diplomatic and considerate of others feeling. Therefore, they try to listen more and build in relationship in works and company partners which helped me to improve my skill in communication showing great result satisfactions for the stake holder and team members this helps in knowing the team members more knowing their interest will help later in dividing the work on their interest which will increase our level in achieving and create an achieving atmosphere and positive one.

Satisfying stakeholders and team members through clear and considerate communication will bring an overall success to the company also it will lead to positive results for the company in this way we are achieving satisfaction in the company and the team.
